It's Question Time for businesses on the Humber

Join us for our upcoming Panel Discussion at Andrew Jackson's offices, Marina Court, Hull. The event is being hosted as a part of Humber Business Week 2024.

This lively and interactive session, based on the popular 'Question Time' format, will bring together a panel of leading regional business figures to discuss the big questions from our audience in an hour of discussion and debate.

Simon Green, chief executive of Humber Freeport; Jo Barnes, managing director of Sewell Group; Diana Taylor, managing director of Future Humber and James Doyle, group managing director of J.R Rix will lend their expertise and provide valuable insight into issues raised, with subjects likely to range from inward investment and Humber Freeport, to the workforce, recruitment and retention, devolution to decarbonisation, social mobility to business leadership and the potential impact of a looming general election.
